Key points

- Flight costs at major U.S. airports have increased an average of 29% since 2021.
- Of the 100 busiest airports in the U.S., Orlando Sanford International Airport has the cheapest flights.

The United States has 19,969 airports, according to the most recent data from the Bureau of Transportation Statistics.<sup>1</sup> Of those, 5,193 are for public use and 14,776 are private airports.<sup>2</sup> Below, we'll break down important airfare and flight statistics across these major airports, with a particular focus on:

- Flight costs and how they've changed in recent years.
- The cheapest airports to fly out of.
- The most expensive airports to fly out of.
- The busiest airports and times to travel.
- How to find the cheapest flights.

What are the cheapest and most expensive airports in the U.S.?

Of the nearly 450 major U.S. airports tracked by the United States Department of Transportation, the most expensive airport is Guam International Airport. Airline tickets there cost an average of $1,725.11.<sup>1</sup>

The cheapest airport to fly out of in the United States is Mobile International Airport in Mobile, Alabama, where ticket costs average $78.65.<sup>1</sup>

However, if we narrow down our analysis to major airports only — the 100 busiest by passenger volume — then the cheapest airport in the U.S. is Orlando Sanford International Airport in Sanford, Florida, where the average flight costs $126.48.<sup>1</sup>

And of those 100 busiest airports, Ted Stevens Anchorage International in Anchorage, Alaska, is the most expensive airport. Here, the average ticket costs $516.95.<sup>1</sup>

Average flight costs at major airports

The average airfare for a roundtrip flight within the U.S. is $367.79.<sup>1</sup> But the airport you choose can have a major impact on how much you'll spend on a flight.

The table below shows the average cost of airfare at the 100 busiest airports in the U.S.

When is the best time to book a flight?

The best time to book a flight is 25 to 38 days before departure if you are traveling domestically, according to Expedia.<sup>8</sup> The best time to book a flight if you are traveling internationally is about two months before departure, though you are taking a gamble that flights won't sell out by then.

Booking a domestic flight a month before departure is 10% cheaper than booking at the last minute, on average. Booking for international flights peaks early — you'll generally need to buy your tickets six months before departure to save that 10% on airfare.

Which airline has the most canceled or delayed flights?

Frontier Airlines had the most delayed flights in 2023, with 33% of flights delayed. Delta Airlines had the fewest delayed flights; only 16% of Delta flights were delayed last year.<sup>1</sup>

JetBlue had the highest number of canceled flights in 2023, with more than 2.6% of flights getting canceled. Alaska Airlines had the fewest canceled flights in 2023. Less than 1% of the airline's flights were canceled in 2023.<sup>1</sup>

How much is travel insurance?

Given the volatility of the airline industry, it’s a good idea to purchase comprehensive travel insurance when booking a flight. On average, travel insurance costs between 5% and 6% of your nonrefundable trip expenses.

That means insuring a $10,000 trip (all nonrefundable) might cost $500 to $600. Insuring a much less expensive trip (say $1,000) would thus be more affordable ($50 to $60).
